An Italian Prince and a Cuban Belle in Search of Hymen.

From the New York Sun

That jolly old King of Israel whom Brigham Young and his followers have been poorly imitating, who had three thousand wives, and of course loved them all, and therefore could speak from experience, said that "many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it" This witness is true, and his statement has just been verified by a couple who were married in this city on Saturday The bride is a charming young Cuban lady, Miss Emilie Hamil, aged 20 years, and the groom none other than Prince Louis de Bourbon, son of Louis de Bourbon, Count d'Aquila, of Italy, grandson of Charles V, cousin of Don Carlos, of Spain, nephew of the ex King of Naples, and nephew also of Don Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, aged 21

There is a smack of romance about the affair which is seldom found in books or newspapers, and which strongly illustrates the old proverb that "truth is stranger than fiction"

It seems that about four years ago, Mrs Hamil and her accomplished daughter, then a young Miss of 16 summers, arrived here from Cuba, en route to Paris, where Miss Emilie was to finish her education She is represented as being a good linguist, a thorough pianist, and withal prepossessing The mother and daughter spent five months at Delmonico's in Fifth avenue, and the latter became a favorite with all who knew her. Her beauty of person and pleasing manners won friends everywhere No wonder then, that she speedily became a favorite at the French Court and capital The Emperor and Empress were alike smitten by her charms, and princes, dukes and counts in vain sought to gain her affections Prince Achille Murat and Marquis de Caux, now the happy husband of Adelina Patti, threw their purses and their sceptres at her feet But the gem was not for them A braver heart and more steadfast love than theirs was to win the prize This was no less a personage than the Prince Louis de Bourbon

This young man was then 22 years of age He came, he saw, he conquered The winning ways of Miss Hamil left him no longer master of his affections or his fear. They were here His purse and his honors were no obstacles for no account in course had this The prince was amiable and accomplished and the alliance and attachment of the young people became manifest Mrs Hamil readily consented to his addresses, but to her daughter and a betrothal was the result The subject was broached to the Count d'Aquila, who would not consent to the union of his son with a young lady who could not trace her genealogy to some royal house, albeit such ancestors may have been in exile or a little Prince Louis, not having attained his 21st year and not having secured his father's consent, was required by the laws of France to obtain the Emperor's sanction before uniting himself in marriage to his affianced Napoleon and Eugenie were not opposed, but instead of giving direct assent, they advised the lovers to tell it He did relent and concluded his betrothal and her mother coming over in 1867 to Leghorn and there have the marriage consummated This was decided upon hearing of the departure, to wed Aquila followed them to London, and received his protest in Paris The young Prince and Miss Hamil represented to Prince Louis that his mother, the Countess d'Aquila was dying dangerously ill at Paris and that her illness might have a fatal termination if she should be informed of the Prince's sudden marriage These unexpected tidings compelled the Prince to return They also induced Mrs Hamil to assure the Count d'Aquila that she did not desire that her daughter's union with Prince Louis should prove to be the cause of so serious a shock to any member of his family, and that while she was satisfied that the happiness of both the Prince and her daughter was dependent upon their union with each other she was willing, so far as she was concerned, that marriage should be foregone, if the Prince should finally deem that sacrifice necessary The lovers returned to Paris only to find that the Countess was perfectly well, and had not been an hour sick during her son's absence This deception only served the cause, and starting away again, they arrived at Cologne and applied to the Archbishop for a dispensation in favor of their marriage, which was denied The lovers, nothing daunted, traveled through Belgium and crossed the channel again to England, and thence took the Cunard steamer Palmyra for the United States They arrived in Boston a week ago and came directly on to New York During their sojourn in Paris Mrs and Miss Hamil formed the acquaintance of Mr and Mrs Asher T Mayer, of 72 West Forty ninth street, and thither the party at once repaired The services of the Rev Father Lefloni, pastor of the church of St Vincent de Paul, in West Twenty third street, were sought, and he agreed to unite the lovers at the house of their friends, but in the afternoon he sent a message, said to have been inspired or dictated by Archbishop McCloskey, refusing to perform the ceremony The party then went to the priest's residence and demanded an explanation The refusal was dictated from Rome, and the Prince saw no escape out of his difficulty but to forswear his allegiance and resign his rights as a scion of the house of Bourbon which he did at once, and procured a civil marriage which, under our republican laws is as binding as if it had a Pope's or a Bishop's blessing Love triumphed, and we wish the romantic lovers a long and peaceful career, and a serene and happy departure

Hints to Housekeepers

System and forethought are two brain maidens, who are very essential to good housekeeping With their assistance the work will be all arranged beforehand, done in its proper order and at the right time Monday's washing should never (excepting in cases of extreme emergency) be put off till Tuesday, Tuesday's ironing till Wednesday, or Wednesday's cleaning up till Thursday Take Thursday for resting day, and as a preparation for the sweeping and dusting of Friday, and the baking and scrubbing of Saturday Sunday should be a day of rest for kitchen and parlor The greater part of the cooking needful for the day can be attended to on Saturday Surely God taught that lesson when he told the Hebrews to gather a double quantity of quails and manna on that day, to enable them to keep his day of rest If more than needful was gathered on any other day it became a mass of corruption, but on the Sabbath they were fresh and delicious as if newly collected Gentlemen who are forced to saw low their dinners in hot haste on other days, enjoy an extra dinner on the Sabbath, and will be out of our stereotyped brain maidens, it can be well managed A delicious oyster soup is made in twenty minutes, a cold chicken pie, boiled ham, or mutton pie, pressed cold corned beef, etc, with cold potatoes sliced and stewed in milk and butter, a cold pudding or pie will give our husbands a surprising Sunday dinner and not detain any one at home One half hour would prepare the whole, with an excellent cup of coffee to boot

With the help of our brain maidens, we can also arrange our work so as to save fuel as much as possible Coals and wood are yearly increasing in cost and it behooves us to learn to economize in the use of them Bread sponged at night will be ready to bake with that first fire which always makes the oven hot in the morning Fruit should be prepared over night so that pies or other things can be quickly made and baked immediately after the bread Hashes for breakfast should be prepared over night, potatoes washed and laid near the stove so as to be placed in the oven as soon as the fire is built Dining room and kitchen should be put in order before retiring to rest Kindlings and waiter is needed for building fires half ready, and the fire in the kitchen, if coal is used raked down so that it can be built up in the shortest possible space of time This is not only a saving of time in the morning, but will be found useful in case of illness in the night, when a fire is often required at a moment's notice

It is far greater economy to purchase all groceries in large quantities Starch and soap should always be purchased by the box There is an immense saving in hard soap well dried Take out the bars from the box, and pile up (like cornpone, when used to make pilot bread for children) in some warm place in the summer is a fine place to dry it It is surprising that so many of our housekeepers should be willing to purchase soap in damp bars they lose full one third of its value Starch also, is terribly wasted, when bought by the pound and half-pound packages, which are frequently all used at one time, by careless girls who do not understand its properties

Every family that can possibly find means to do it, or a place to properly keep the articles, should have a storeroom and cellar filled with plenty of flour, potatoes, apples, butter, beets, turnips, onions, and fuel to last till summer comes, also a good supply of Indian meal, hominy, farina, etc, sugar, tea, coffee, and other staples These all bought in the bulk are much lower than by the pound. A box of raisins and a few pounds of currants will be pleasant additions, as well as all kinds of canned fruits A spice box well filled is a desirable addition to a closet. We believe that a saving of over fifty dollars per year could be made in a family by purchasing all stores in quantities Now if this should be expended in books, in ten years one would amass quite a library, and what is more needful for the sustenance of the soul than good books? They are the solace of the good housekeeper, when wearied with the daily routine of household cares, the delight of the young, and the relief of the middle aged from the cracking cares of business life? What do we not owe to books? J.

Fresh Air for the Consumptive

From the Atlantic Monthly
BY DR. HENRY I. BOWDITCH

Build your houses in the country, in preference to any place on the sea coast In the country choose a slope rather than a plain to build upon, and where sun can have full access to it, if possible, all the day Be sure (if need be, by effectual subdrainage) that the soil is thoroughly permeable to water Let no moisture from the soil from any source, be permitted to distill its pernicious influences upon the future dwelling or its inmates Let the rooms be large, of substantial breadth rather than height and so placed by windows that the air may have a thoroughfare and freedom to come and go Let fireplaces be built in every room and chamber,—fireplaces made for real use, not kept for show, and not closed with iron plates which are to be pierced for air tight stoves I chew all furnace heat except for warming the entries and corridors

Outside the house let there be ample space for air and sunlight One or two trees may be permitted to grow near the house, but not to overshadow it, for nothing but evil comes from too much shade, either of trees or climbing vines Both of these may very materially prevent the warm rays of the sun from reaching and bathing the exterior, or from penetrating the interior of the house which they should be allowed to do freely, even in the depths of summer. Nothing so deadens the atmosphere as the too common closure of the windows, blinds, and curtains while daylight and heat as well as fresh air are excluded Every morning let the windows be opened widely, so as to drive off the remains of foul air that has necessarily accumulated from the sleepers during the previous night Every night let part of the windows be left open, and if possible at the top and bottom, so that during sleep there may be a plenty of fresh, unrestricted air for the sleepers and all else to use Of course the amount of space thus opened will vary with the season but often even during our Northern winters specially for those in feeble health a small space, at least, may thus be left Two or three extra blankets only will be needed for any one thus educated

As to the value of fresh air, disk for the healthy and the invalid, there seems to exist great doubt in this community Even the healthy have to great faith in its efficacy as a means of living health It avails almost with the entire opinion we have to educate to this faith They have so many doubts about the weather It is too cold, too hot too windy, or too blustering It is cloudy, or an east wind prevails These and a hundred other trivial deviations from perfect weather are noted, and the unfortunate invalid quietly stays within doors day after day to avoid them Nothing is more pernicious in its behavior more unwise Both invalids and healthy persons ought to eschew all such views as are not fully "Whenever in doubt, when in doubt go out, always go out" If a violent storm is raging, to which no one would willingly expose himself, then keep close in the house But the moment it ceases even for an occasion for exercise out of doors It would be better, said the late John Ware for everybody, sick and well, to face every storm, than to be fearful, as we now usually are, of even a trace of foul weather

Gambling Scenes in Montana

A correspondent of the Omaha Republican writing from Helena, Montana, referring to the gambling hells of that place, says

Young men are considered fair game by all these dens for there is you find your most intimate friends judges, lawyers, doctors everybody, in fact But now try and imagine yourself at my elbow, and the accomplished sharper swing around the circle just far enough to get a glimpse of the kind of life one is able to find in those hells of chandelier crime Here is a long, low, rough appearing frame structure with port hole windows, along the sides, double doors in front just outside of which a band of screeching horns are poisoning the air with unhealthy sounds We enter the hall now brilliant with rows of burning candles for remember this is night and jammed with drunken miners, the respectable element in the community, others who are cutthroats, some who are professional, nothing more nor less than bandy tools for any and all villainous purposes Every man, we are careful to observe, has a fine looking pistol buckled to his side never used, we understand, only when it becomes absolutely necessary to shoot a friend There are twenty three tables in the room or hall which is perhaps 200 feet in length some of these tables are large, while others are small There is a game of faro, around which is assembled the friends of both winner and loser Five thousand dollars in gold dust is lying in a sack upon the table The unfortunate is fired with gambling rage and is just now cursing a song bird, the lucky dealer, and his infamous "cappers," are alive with exultant spirits It is safe to say that one thousand men have returned poorer for the visit, others have been fed on a fabled hook, that they may be more easily caught hereafter Probably $20,000 have changed hands in this one place to-night, and there are dozens of such sinks in town

Growing Old.

A great deal has been written about growing old gracefully, but the curious psychological mystery is that one never knows when one begins to grow old I am persuaded in fact I am moved, and a mighty one of the horizon You think if you are young enough to take things for what they seem But surely I am sorry just behind you for all but you get the sad and weary side of wood and in fact high seem you and hang the fellow Is it possible that to most girls in their teens twenty here seems quite advanced age and they look upon a woman of thirty as rather beyond the intimate interest of life human stuff, to be sure but with little concern about any world outside her kitchen and her nursery It is then of a woman in her twenties or thirties that she begins to see that she has much the same hot and feeling which troubled her through her pulses five or six years ago and she even begins to fancy that she may not quite have lost them at thirty, so she leaves her sneers for forty and forty, which really is pretty old you know But when she is thirty she does not think of forty at all She has hopes to surpass, and an impressionable longing life and conscience to be thirty something and she no longer thinks of the years to come with the fresh clamp nonsense of youth She is rosefully certain that she shall be fifty some day and comforts herself by remembering that that age Madame de Maintenon was taken in love with by the king, and Madame Recamier had not lost her power to charm Forgive her, then, if she forgets who and confesses her hatred that she was younger once, and do not to own the unkind reading of the wicked Satan and sneer at her for an old fool

New Orleans, unlike any other great city in the world is surrounded by wild animals Deer are shot within five miles of the City Hall, and alligators abound in neighboring swamps Old residents in old remember when young alligators were brought in the street by negroes The last news is that an American girl has gone into complete fly and rescued a little girl in a parish not far from the city These animals are said are increasing in that part of Louisiana

VERY LATEST NEWS.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION--SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 26

Mr Wilson introduced a bill for the protection of soldiers and their heirs against claim agents, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs

Mr Howard submitted the amendment intended to be proposed as a substitute for the House joint resolution to protect the interests of the United States in the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and for other purposes

The Financial bill was then taken up

Mr Kellogg withdrew his pending amendments to Mr Wilson's amendment

Mr Wilson modified his amendment so as to provide that whenever the amount of United States notes and circulating notes of national banks combined shall be in excess of $650,000,000 the Secretary of the Treasury shall be required to fund in 10-40 bonds United States notes to the extent of such excess until the amount of notes outstanding shall be reduced to $350,000,000. He said the plan proposed in this amendment would relieve the South and the West by letting up the same time, instead of the provisions of the currency which would be done by the plan of the committee

Mr Corbett argued generally against the bill

Mr Wilson defended his proposition and incidentally expressed the opinion that the present financial condition of the country was very satisfactory, while the contraction bill would soon be made a very light burden by the rapid development of national resources

Mr Williams gave expression of his opposition to the amendment intended to call for the national currency and for the withdrawal of circulation from certain States proposed by the Finance Committee would be a violation of faith. He moved to amend the amendment of Mr Wilson by fixing the interest on the circulating notes at $300,000,000 instead of $350,000,000, and by allowing the Secretary of the Treasury to fund United States notes at the same rate as said ten millions of circulating notes issued

HOUSE.

Mr Banks from the Committee on Foreign Affairs reported a resolution declaring the sympathy of the people of the United States with the people of Cuba in their patriotic efforts to secure independence and to establish a republican form of government, including personal rights of all people, and that Congress will give its Constitutional support to the President of the United States whenever he may deem expedient to recognize the independence and existence of such a republican government. Recommitted and ordered printed

After the morning hour during which several private bills were passed, Mr Cessna, from the Committee on Elections, reported in the contested election case from the Twenty first District of Pennsylvania that John Covode has prima facie evidence of right to the seat pending the contest and gave notice he would call up the report for action next Tuesday

Mr Farnsworth from the minority of the committee reported against the proposition of Mr Garfield and other Republicans to have a joint rule for counting the votes for President and Vice President

Mr Blair introduced Mr Randall and others discussed the question of the right of the House to reject a member elect and the motion of reference was finally withdrawn. The question was then taken on concurring in the Senate amendment which House refused to concur by a vote of yeas 61 nays 94 so the bill was sent back to the Senate. A conference was asked for and the House then adjourned until Monday

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, March 25 1869—6 P M

The strong speculative movement that carried prices up within a week, from $5 00 at Titusville, and $5 60 at Oil City to $6 00 at the former place, and to about $6 60 on broad gauge cars at the latter, culminated yesterday afternoon, and as a consequence a feeling today was flat and weak There was very little inquiry on the creek or at Oil City and in order to effect sales it was necessary to make concessions from ten to twenty five cents from the closing prices of yesterday At Oil City a limited number of barrels could have been made in the afternoon at $5 10 to $5.20 on broad gauge cars but other were nominal at $6 45 to $6 50 At Petroleum Center no oil in the city was offered all day at $6 00 without finding buyers At other points between Titusville and Oil City there were buyers for most of the day at $5 50 and $5 90 At Miller and Irwin there were offers to buy at the close at $5 50 and [illegible] and sales aggregated 6 000 barrels at [illegible] for New York and 1 000 on speculation The market was much less active on the part of the bears to run prices down than might have been expected with the market in its present condition —To-morrow will be Easter Sunday.

—The Tyroleans give a concert at Corinthian Hall this evening.

—The new Presbyterian church in Franklin will be dedicated April 1st.

—George V. Freeman, Republican, is the newly elected Burgess of Oil City.

—Reserved seats for B. F. Taylor's lecture can be obtained at the P. O. news rooms.

—The charter election in Franklin resulted in the success of the Republican candidate for Mayor, Henry Dobbs, by 31 majority.

—There will be an Easter Festival at St. James' Memorial Church to-morrow (Sunday) at half past two o'clock. The public are cordially invited.

—The House of Representatives at Harrisburg ratified the Fifteenth Amendment on Thursday evening by a vastly party vote. The Senate had previously done so.

—In our issue of the 23d inst. we stated that a bill before the Legislature preventing the destruction of oil producing wells in Venango county had passed the House. This was a mistake. The bill was defeated in the House.

—By request of many persons the annual renting of pews in St. James' Memorial Church will take place on Monday evening next, March 29th, commencing at 8 o'clock, instead of Tuesday evening, as previously announced. Parties desiring seats will please attend in person, as no pews will be reserved.

—Representative Ames is constantly in receipt of letters at Harrisburg urging the defeat of the Boiler Inspection Bill. This bill was defeated in the House on Thursday last, it having been by a very large majority indefinitely postponed. We are glad to learn that Mr. Ames exerted himself untiringly to accomplish that result.

—J. C. Hays, Esq., has purchased the interest of Col. Tyler in the Meadville Republican, and become associated with Mr. White as joint proprietor. Mr. Hays is a veteran journalist, and after his four years retirement from professional labor will be cordially welcomed back by the fraternity. Col. Tyler bears with him the respect and good wishes of all who have enjoyed his acquaintance.

—A letter from the Cascade Paper Company, whose works were recently destroyed by fire at Penn Yan, informs us that their loss was $8,000; insurance, $45,000. The Cascade Company had the only mill in the United States that made print paper from straw alone, which was owing to a process of their own, covered by three patents. It is hoped the company will soon be able to rebuild and resume manufacture.

THE USTON SCHOOL EXHIBITION, Corinthian Hall was completely filled last evening, all the reserved seats having been sold during the day. The programme arranged for the occasion we have already published. It consisted of declamations, recitations, dialogues and tableau, alternated with vocal and instrumental music. The exercises were in charge of Prof. Stewart, Principal, and Prof. Wolfe, assistant in the senior department. The performances evinced great thoroughness of preparation for the exhibition, and we believe in all respects exceeded the expectations of the audience. During the entire exercises no one required prompting, and the propriety of gesture, emphasis and expression, showed that the declaimers not only thoroughly comprehended, but were able to impart the spirit of the author whose productions they rendered. The tableau added a novel interest to the exercises, and the perfection of arrangement which characterized it, attested the care, patience and good taste of those who had supervised the exhibition. A lively spirit seemed to pervade the whole audience, and every one must have admired the skill with which the actors had acted their bright and pleasing roles, and might long continue to cherish the same feelings toward them.

It was gratifying to observe that the audience consisted in a great part of parents whose children attend the public school. It is due to teachers in the city, who are the very faithful time important duties, to say that the periodical examinations, should be attended by thousands of parents and the friends of education, with a desire of improvement as they behold the results of their general theories and practice. It is likewise stimulating to the students, particularly to find that their studious application, and honest and earnest efforts to excel, will be appreciated and rewarded by those which are confined to his associates and preceptors.

It is hoped that the evening exercises of the ensuing term will be held in a public hall, during the day, to enable the public to witness without charge, the examination of pupils in the general branches of education. The entertainment of last evening was especially designed to create a fund for the purchase of a piano for the use of the school, and we believe the success of the exhibition, nearly reaches the desired end.

ACCIDENT FOR FIRE.—On Thursday night last a man named George Kentch, an engineer, was brought before Justice Barrows on the charge of having obtained $200 from the Titusville Savings Bank on a forged certificate of deposit, and committed in default of $2,000 bail. On the day previous Arthur Willoughby, living near Oil City, was held to bail in a like amount by Justice Hoffman, at Pleasantville, on the charge of being an accomplice of Tenyck. The circumstances connected with the alleged forgery are as follows: Some time ago a man named Lockwood deposited for one of his engineers, named Hugh McGillivray, in the bank above named, the sum of $200, and a certificate of deposit was given him, which he handed to McGillivray as soon as he went to Shamburg, where the latter is employed. On the 22d of February Tenyck came into the bank with the certificate of deposit endorsed with McGillivray's name. The endorsement was, to all appearances, genuine, but the cashier required further assurance in the way of an endorsement by Tenyck, upon the performance of which the money was given him. A short time afterwards McGillivray came into the bank and told the cashier not to pay the certificate of deposit, if it should be presented, as it had been stolen from him. The matter was put into the hands of the police who kept it quiet for a time, as Tenyck had gone to West Virginia. On Friday or Saturday last the authorities were informed that Tenyck had returned and was at work on the Tarr farm, and a warrant was at once got out for his arrest. He was secured by Chief Police Rouse on Saturday night and brought to this city. On arriving here he made information against Willoughby, from whom, he said, he had received the certificate. Willoughby was arrested at Oil City and disposed of as above stated.

ATTENTION is directed to an extensive sale of gold and silver watches at Rice's auction rooms this evening. It is an administrator's sale, and all the goods are warranted to be as represented.

Gladstone and the Irish Church.

There are not very many points in the proposals in Mr. Gladstone's bill for the disestablishment of the Irish Church to which the most ardent voluntary could object, though there are some. For instance, there is a proposal to loan, on easy terms, sums to the different denominations, for the purpose of erecting parsonages, &c; and this we suppose as a set off to the free grants to Episcopalians of the Glebes and Glebe houses, at present held in connection with the Established Church. The principle of commuting the annuities payable to the present incumbents, for one lump sum, it will be observed, is also proposed; but only in cases where the individuals most interested request that it shall be done.

Arrangements are made for the ultimate autonomy of the church. After the first of January, 1871, the disestablishment is to be complete. Why provision should be made that the Queen should be still allowed to appoint Bishops, provided the Episcopal body requester her to do so, we cannot conceive. The Queen, in this case, is the state, and to talk of the complete severance of church and state, and at the same time to give that state even the conscious right to meddle with the appointment of the office bearers of the church, seems very absurd. Mr. G. might just as well have had a clause authorizing the Queen to appoint the Roman Catholic Bishops or the Moderators of Presbyteries, if she were requested to do so. A few more lessons will show church independence are taught both by the Premier and a good many other people. The Irish Dissent Episcopal Church has to be told, by any other voluntary association, that she is free to arrange her internal arrangement she chooses, compatible, of course, with good civilization and that the Queen as the head of the State church is not can be, in any sense of the term, her patron, head, law giver, or office appointer. In one way and another it is evident that one half of the whole funds of the Irish Church will be absorbed in carrying out the new arrangements. The residue, it is proposed, to be devoted purely secular Irish objects, such as Lunatic Asylums, and the education of Deaf, Dumb and Blind.

That the disendowment of the Irish Church will be ultimately carried, there can be no doubt. Whether by opposing Mr. Gladstone's measure and managing to throw it out, the House of Lords should intensify the keenness of the discussion, and render the final process more sweeping, remains to be seen. Truth, to say, the Upper Chamber, in its Conservative zeal, has of late displayed a very great want of wisdom and ability to discern the signs of the times.

No intelligent man has now any doubt that the days of Established Churches are coming rapidly to a close. It may be right or it may be wrong, but the fact is unquestionable, that all things point to those who believe in a religious system supporting and propagating it and those alone. Those who make a fight for the Irish Establishment are involving the destiny of the English and Scotch sister churches shrewd enough to see what is coming, notwithstanding Mr. Gladstone protests to the contrary. Prudence, however, may yet cause many doubting days of reckoning in Britain, but they cannot save it.

Storage and Transportation of Petroleum

On the first of February the law passed by the Parliament of Great Britain in 1868, regulating the storage of petroleum, goes in operation. It forbids the storage of any bituminous substance producing inflammable vapors at a temperature lower than 100 Fahrenheit, in any magazine within fifty yards of one in which lighted lamps. This prohibition is found to be very inconvenient to merchants, but numerous probable disasters have proved that, in this instance, the public safety required some interference on the part of the government with the ordinary business of life.

The question of the transportation of petroleum, on sea and land, is attended with similar difficulties. The importance of the carriage of Great Britain has become especially important, since it is connected has proved a great use of the principle of taking, even upon the ravages of the rinderpest among the cattle. Follow has been from time immemorial the dominating matter of the peasantry in Great Britain, and a severity and dearness of it would have put out the "larching dip" in many a humble home. Petroleum now partly takes its place, and, consequently, the unobtrusive form in which it is transported is a matter of interest to the masses. Sensation whatever the cry of a free trade, it is evident that a tax of a few shillings a ton, or per ton, on petroleum, adds to the price paid by the consumer.

The most important and rational precaution is a thorough inspection of the petroleum. It is easy enough to prevent accidents by incendiary the time and place of its manufacture, by preventing the time and place of its transportation, adds to the price paid by the consumer.

General Registry Law.

The evening session of the State Senate on Tuesday 23d, was held for the consideration of the general registry law for the State.

The bill makes it the duty of the assessors on the first Monday in June of each year to revise the transcripts which they have received from the county commissioners, and prepare a correct list of voters, with places of residence, and also make a separate list of all assessments for the commissioners.

They are also, prior to the 1st of August, to post one copy of the list in the house where an election is held; and they shall add to their list the name of those claiming the right to vote.

On election day, any voter whose name has been omitted may, by taking oath, substantiated by the oath of one witness, as to certain points, cast his vote.

The Court of Common Pleas to have power, on request of citizens, to appoint two overseers to be present with the officers of election. It also makes it illegal for any prothonotary, clerk or deputy to affix the seal of office in any naturalization paper, whereby it may be fraudulently used, or aid in promoting the issue of fraudulent naturalization certificates, or to vote on such papers.

It also provides that all city, ward, borough, township, and election officers shall be elected on the second Tuesday of October. That all elections shall be held between 7 a. m. and 6 p. m.

The bill passed the Senate on Thursday.

A BIT OF ADVERTISING.—Dr. C. C. Bristol, the inventor of the famous Bristol Sarsaparilla, which had so extensive a run years ago, is now publishing a paper in New Jersey. Three years ago he was engaged in the drug business at Pithole city, and formed an extensive personal acquaintance throughout the oil region. For some time past a contest has been going on in Ocean county, New Jersey, between the Hon. John Torrey and Thos. Hooper, Esq., the bone of contention being a seat in the State Senate. The election took place, by those whom the testimony was taken, and depositions to examine Dr. Bristol, as a witness. In reply to the question, "What is your occupation?" Dr. Bristol replied: "I have

"I am editor of the Country Home, an agricultural paper published at Toms River, devoted to the interests of South Jersey and the developments of millions of acres of land now lying waste in that portion of the State, and also in advertising the operations of these lands by the introduction of public improvements in the way of roads. This paper has already charge effects on the New England, and I am now making arrangements with two imperial railroad companies running through Canada and Mexico to publish an edition of twenty-five thousand copies per month, to be distributed by agents of these companies in the New England States. The cost of this paper is put at the low price of 50 cents per year. The publication office is at Manchester, Ocean county, N. J., where communications addressed to C. C. Bristol, editor, will meet attention. I am also post master at Manchester. I voted for the Hon. John Torrey, who resigned the civil service bill, and received a letter from the Hon. John Torrey, who resigned the civil service bill, and received a letter from the Hon. John Torrey, who resigned the civil service bill, and received a letter from

All Sorts.

Mr. Arthur Van Normin, of Detroit, is introducing a patent pavement that is said to surpass the Nicholson. It can be laid without planking, on bare sand; the blocks are close together, having no bricks of any kind between the rows, and are fastened with wooden keys, no nails or bolts being used. This peculiarity, it is said, will prevent the arch either moving up or down. Each block is grooved one or more times at the side, to allow for the expansion or contraction of the wood, and to permit of the absorption of whatever moisture may remain upon the surface. These grooves are quite small, and are filled with sand and tar. The blocks being laid close together, will, it is claimed, make a continuously smooth surface, leaving no jog and consequently no jar, and preventing the wearing of the edges of the blocks, thus preventing any grooves being made, as are visible in the Nicholson pavement.

A young married lady from Springfield, Ill., called at the Police Headquarters in New Orleans, last week, to get some clue to her husband, who had been missing some months. He always made a Southern tour in the winter, she said, and made a great deal of money, keeping her well suppled. He had been gone so long this time, however, that she was anxious. It turned out that he was a professional thief, and is now in prison. The poor woman's horror and anguish may be imagined.

Let every man, especially those in public life, who desires to avoid a drunkard's death remember that he is on the crumbling verge of such an infamy when he begins to feel that in order to prepare himself, the doctor for consultation, the lawyer for a cause, the clergyman for a sermon, the politician for a speech, he must take a pint of coffee or a plug of opium, and the self same moment of that discovery let him put his foot down, raise his hand and swear that, by the help of God, he will never taste another grain or drop as long as life remains. This is the only safety.

A Faribault, Minn., physician trimmed a corn too closely, gangrene set in, amputation of the leg became necessary, and a day after the operation he died.

It is said that a dog taken in his infancy and held for three quarters of an hour with his head under water will never have hydrophobia, even if bitten by a mad dog.

The Bishop of New Jersey, it is said, has given notice that he will refuse at confirmation to lay his hands upon the piles of false hair and chignons which disfigure the heads of so many young ladies seeking admission to the church and communion. The laying on of sacred hands at the altar upon so much rubbish gathered from the four corners of the earth, instead of the natural hair or head, is deemed an offense to the law and gospel of the church.

A gentleman in Auburn recently dropped his wallet and several hundred dollars, in the morning, while going out of his yard. His dog saw it drop in the snow and stayed by it all day, until the master's return home, when the faithful animal attracted his attention and pawed it from under the snow.

Velocipedes are to be made in Newark with double saddles for a lady and gentleman.

A cat, asleep in a coal scuttle in Auburn the other day, was dumped in the stove by its near sighted mistress and badly burned.

Where the buffaloes have lived herds of cattle innumerable can be grazed. Where the antelope has sported, flocks of sheep beyond counting can be led. Hence, on the plains east of the Rocky Mountains, and in the valley of the Platte, there will soon be beef, mutton, and wool gathering to supply half the world.

Certain children in Portland, Me., were in the habit of sliding down a hill near the house occupied by a favorite dog. Early one morning they discovered that the dog had taken the sled, drawn it to the top, and was now sliding down the hill all alone by himself; and this was frequently repeated!

Eminent physicians assert that a change of physical type is periodic, and that since 1862, the plethoric type has been gaining on the nervous. Men can lose blood now, according to their statements, who could not a few years ago. "The nervous type," says one physician, "came in with the first cholera epidemic, and has lasted about a third of a century."

Griffin's Patent

WATER PACKER.

This is one of the most useful Patents for oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or Water Packer in use. 1st. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use, there is no waiting for seed to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or rods in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

EVERY OTHER PACKER IN USE HAS FASTENED STRINGS OF TUBING AND CASING, SO THEY CANNOT BE DRAWN FROM THE WELL.

3d. It is so constructed by means of a left hand screw thread that it can be loosened in a few minutes and removed from the well without difficulty. Even the caving in of the rock above the packer will not prevent the casing being drawn out readily. It can be taken out and put back without repairs.

4th. This is the only Water Packer in use at has a Patent on, all others being an infringement upon the rights secured by letters Patent granted by the United States to Amos D. Griffin, August 18th 1867. The Packer is now offered to the public at the low price of Twelve Dollars each, and the money will be refunded by us or our agents to all parties buying them where they do not give entire satisfaction.

TRI-NITRO

NO. 76,499, APRIL 7th, 1869.

BLASTED IN

OIL WELLS

with Electricity

BY

GEO. M. MOWBRAY,

Superintendent of Blasting Nitro Glycerine at the Hoosac Tunnel, Massachusetts.

[COPY.]

NORTH ADAMS, MASS., Feb 17, 1868.

Geo. M. Mowbray, Esq.,

DEAR SIR.—It is the wish of the Commissioners that you take entire control of the blasting while introducing Nitro glycerine. They wish you to be responsible, that no accident may happen.

Please give such orders, as you deem best in regard to it. I have notified C. A. Brown to receive all instructions from you and to report to you. I shall give no orders nor advice to him, but leave him fully under your control. Yours very truly

W. P. GRANGER, Engineer in charge.

The terrible loss of life which had invariably attended the introduction of Nitro glycerine, probably suggested the above communication, and the fact that no injury to life or limb occurred with Nitro-glycerine, during the past year at the Hoosac Tunnel, although we blasted over two thousand charges a month, is the best guarantee I can offer to proprietors of oil wells, who may wish this explosive tried in their wells. I shall spare no pains, care, or outlay, to attain the best results and having erected works on Church Run, which have to-day been tested, and found to make Nitro glycerine more powerful than any produced by other parties, or imported, is safer to handle and having the advantage of witnessing its effects in rock blasting, I hope to deserve the confidence of well operators, pledging myself that the full charge stipulated for shall in every case be exploded in their wells or no payment will be asked. Address as by mail or telegraph,

GEO. M. MOWBRAY, Titusville, Pa.

To prevent delay, please notify a few days in advance, when practicable.

TO OIL OPERATORS.

I have invented a new and useful instrument for

Searching and Scraping

the walls in Oil Wells, removing the Paraffine or other substance from the sides of wells, and indicating the locality of any Crevice, be it ever so small. This has been used in a number of Wells, and all who have seen its workings pronounce it to be far preferable to anything now in use, as it will make the same record in coming up as when lowered into the well, and the same the second time as the first and will not indicate a Crevice for every Spall that may have been broken out of the rock when the well was being drilled, and thus lead the well owners to Explode Torpedoes or Tube their wells in the wrong place and occasioning a great expenditure of time and money without any beneficial results.

I will guarantee to all who may favor me with their Custom, that they will be satisfied that the record furnished them of their wells is correct and reliable.

All orders directed to me at Titusville, Box 560, or left at my residence on Church Run will be promptly attended to. ELIAS BEACH

This advance is occasioned by the high price of oil, which makes the unavoidable loss at ending the transmission of oil through pipes a large percentage of the present freight.
